Meet Meander Moose: Idaho's Sweetest New Children's Book

For author Suzi Gliwa, stepping into the world of children's books wasn't always part of the plan.

Suzi's first step was to publish A Guide to Creating Your Own Bucket List in 2024. This book is a thought-provoking guide that is meant to be "helpful in creating a more productive and meaningful life."

Its companion book, My Bucket List Journal, helps to "document and capture" the experiences carried out on the reader's own Bucket List.

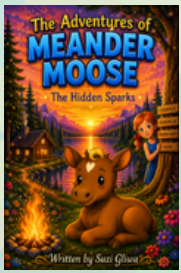

However, in June 2025, Suzi's life took an eventful turn during a trip just north of McCall, Idaho. There, she finally crossed a major item off her own bucket list: spotting her first moose—a mama and her baby.

That unforgettable encounter sparked a whole new creative chapter, inspiring both the character and the name for Meander Moose Adventures.

"The name 'Meander' came from the place where that bucket-list moment happened, and 'Moose' came from the unforgettable animals we saw that day."

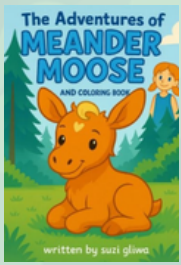

Each story holds a special place in her heart because every one is built around a different feeling, lesson, or message she wants to share with little ones.

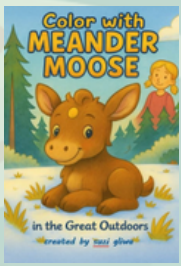

Each book "is built around something children can relate to, like friendship, kindness, courage, confidence, big feelings, forgiveness, and hope. I want kids to enjoy the story first, but also come away with something positive that stays with them."

Whether it's the original adventure that introduces readers to Meander, or her newly released Meander Moose's Little Adventures Activity Book for ages 3–7, every page is designed to help kids navigate big emotions with a smile.

Suzi loves sharing her stories right here in Idaho, where the tight-knit community has welcomed Meander Moose with open arms.

"I love that Idaho still has such a strong sense of community and support for local businesses. There are so many farmer's markets, local events, schools, libraries, gift shops, and family-focused places where I can actually meet people and introduce them to Meander Moose in person."

Reflecting on her journey from bucket-list dream to published author, Suzi's best piece of advice for fellow dreamers is wonderfully simple:

"You don't have to have everything figured out before you start. Sometimes you just have to take the first step and be willing to learn as you go."

Beyond the Candy Bowl

Here Are Some Halloween Treat ideas That Aren't Candy

When you think about Halloween, the first thing that comes to mind is probably candy--mmmm, yummy candy! And that may be the traditional Halloween favorite, but it's not the only option for trick-or-treaters.

More households are choosing to hand out non-candy treats that are fun, useful, and a little unexpected. Here are just a few suggestions:

- Glow sticks
- Stickers
- Temporary tattoos
- Small trinkets or keepsakes
- Money
- Mini toys (like Spider rings, bouncy balls)

MEET THE FIRST ON SCENE

Whether it's an everyday interaction, or a crisis, the trust we build and the respect we show one another, matters. Getting to know and supporting the men and women who serve alongside us, protect us, and sacrifice for us goes beyond knowing the job they do. Making these connections can strengthen our community as a whole, and when we are strong, we are better equipped to get through the hard moments. You don't have to wait for formal events or large-scale introductions. Most of the time, it's as simple as striking up a conversation. Every opportunity taken to connect can make a lasting difference. I personally know how significant connections such as these are, which is why adding Meet The First On Scene to Made In The Valley was so important to me.

From having family members who were first responders to my own recent struggle with mental health, I've experienced firsthand how much simple conversation can matter– It was the kindness and patience of the sergeant who found me and the deputies who responded to the scene that I remember most; what may have seemed small to them, or just another part of the job, was the only good I experienced that night and the days after. I wasn't very talkative, but still, they took the time to talk to me. They took the time to meet me on a human level, not just a professional one. Not long after, one of the deputies gave me his card and when I finally worked up the nerve to call, he took the time to meet and talk with me again. Those conversations helped me start to see that, perhaps, there was a path forward even while I struggled to find one. I will never be able to fully express how grateful I am to them all.

So all this is to say, when you can, take the time to meet some of the people who keep our community safe. Police, Fire, EMS– get to know them a little better beyond what you know about the uniform they wear. Meet The First On Scene is an easy place to start.

Kendra Co-Owner

Mountain Home Fire Department Lt. Cory Hurley

1. What made you decide on a career in the fire department/first response?

To be completely honest I'm not sure, being a firefighter is something I always wanted to do and I'm not sure where it comes from.

2. What did you do before you joined the department?

Maintenance for the local school district.

3. How long have you lived or worked in the area, and what makes this community special to serve?

32 years. What makes the community special to serve is that it's where I grew up, and to be able to give back to the community is a huge win in my book.

4. What do you like most about the area you work in?

The people. We have a lot of people that would give you the shirt off their back if you needed it.

5. What's one thing you wish everyone in the community knew?

Having working smoke alarms in their home. Whether that's a house, a manufactured home, RV or camper. Wherever they sleep at night just having a working smoke detector can save their life.

6. Do you have a favorite or funny memory from working this job?

Favorite memory. We had a smoke alarm call, and two firefighters and I went into the house to check everything. We all three had all our gear on including SCBAs and hand tools. When we got inside the house a little boy was sitting in the living room on the floor and he saw us come into the house and he goes WOW. Just hearing him say that and the look on his face was amazing.

7. What's an off-shift hobby you enjoy?

Spending time with my family and working on projects around the house

8. What's a fun fact about you?

I'm a pretty hands-on person and enjoy fixing or building things.

BEHIND THE MISSION: BEYOND THE BOARDS FOUNDATION

A place where all are welcome, a place where you can find a sense of community and belonging– that is the driving force behind Beyond The Boards Foundation. While Shamus and Kim Mease may just be getting started in their non-profit journey, their vision for the future and their passion have already made a lasting difference. Get to know the heart behind this incredible mission; below is a snippet of our Q&A with Beyond The Boards Foundation.

Q. What's the story behind Beyond The Boards Foundation? How did it get its name? What inspired the nonprofit?

Beyond the Boards Foundation really began with our family's love of hockey and our firsthand experience of seeing just how much being part of an ice sport can impact a person's life. Our son began playing hockey when he was nine years old, and over the years we watched it become so much more than a game. Hockey gave him friendships, purpose, confidence, discipline, a place to belong, and eventually opportunities to give back by helping younger players. As his parents, we often say that hockey saved his life, because we saw the difference that having that community and something he truly loved made in the person he became.

That experience planted a seed. We began dreaming about creating an ice facility in North Idaho, but the more we talked about it, the more we realized our dream wasn't really about building an ice rink at all. It was about creating the kinds of opportunities our family had witnessed– –through hockey and making sure those opportunities weren't limited by someone's age, ability, background, or financial circumstances.

That's where the name Beyond the Boards came from. The boards may surround the ice, but what happens there can reach far beyond them. The lessons learned through sports—perseverance, teamwork, confidence, character, friendship and belonging—follow people into the rest of their lives...Beyond the Boards is still at the beginning of its story, and we have a long road ahead of us. But we believe something doesn't have to exist yet for its purpose to be real. We're taking it one step at a time, building the foundation, gathering people who believe in the vision, and walking by faith toward something we hope will serve North Idaho for generations.

Because ultimately, Beyond the Boards isn't about ice. It's about what can happen in a person's life when they're simply given the opportunity to step onto it. "For we walk by faith, not by sight." – 2 Corinthians 5:7

Q. What does 'a place to belong' mean to you personally?

To me, a place to belong is somewhere you don't have to prove that you deserve to be there. You don't have to be the best athlete, have the most money, look a certain way, learn the same way as everyone else, or have the same abilities. You can simply walk through the doors and know there is a place for you...Personally, I think everyone needs somewhere they can say, "These are my people. I have a place here." I've seen what finding that kind of community through hockey can do in someone's life, and that has stayed with me...

Q. What are the biggest challenges standing between Beyond The Boards Foundation and its vision?

The biggest challenge is probably the sheer size of the vision. We aren't simply hoping to start a program—we ultimately hope to build and operate a multi-rink, inclusive community ice complex. That means finding the right land, raising significant funding, navigating design and construction, developing sustainable operations, and building programs that can serve the community for generations. We know that doesn't happen overnight... We're still at the very beginning. We're building our board, working toward our 501(c)(3) tax-exempt status, developing relationships within the community, learning from people with expertise we don't have, and putting the organizational pieces in place so that Beyond the Boards has a strong foundation before we try to build anything on top of it.

Q. What can the community/businesses/etc. do right now to support Beyond The Boards Foundation, even if they aren't involved in ice sports themselves?

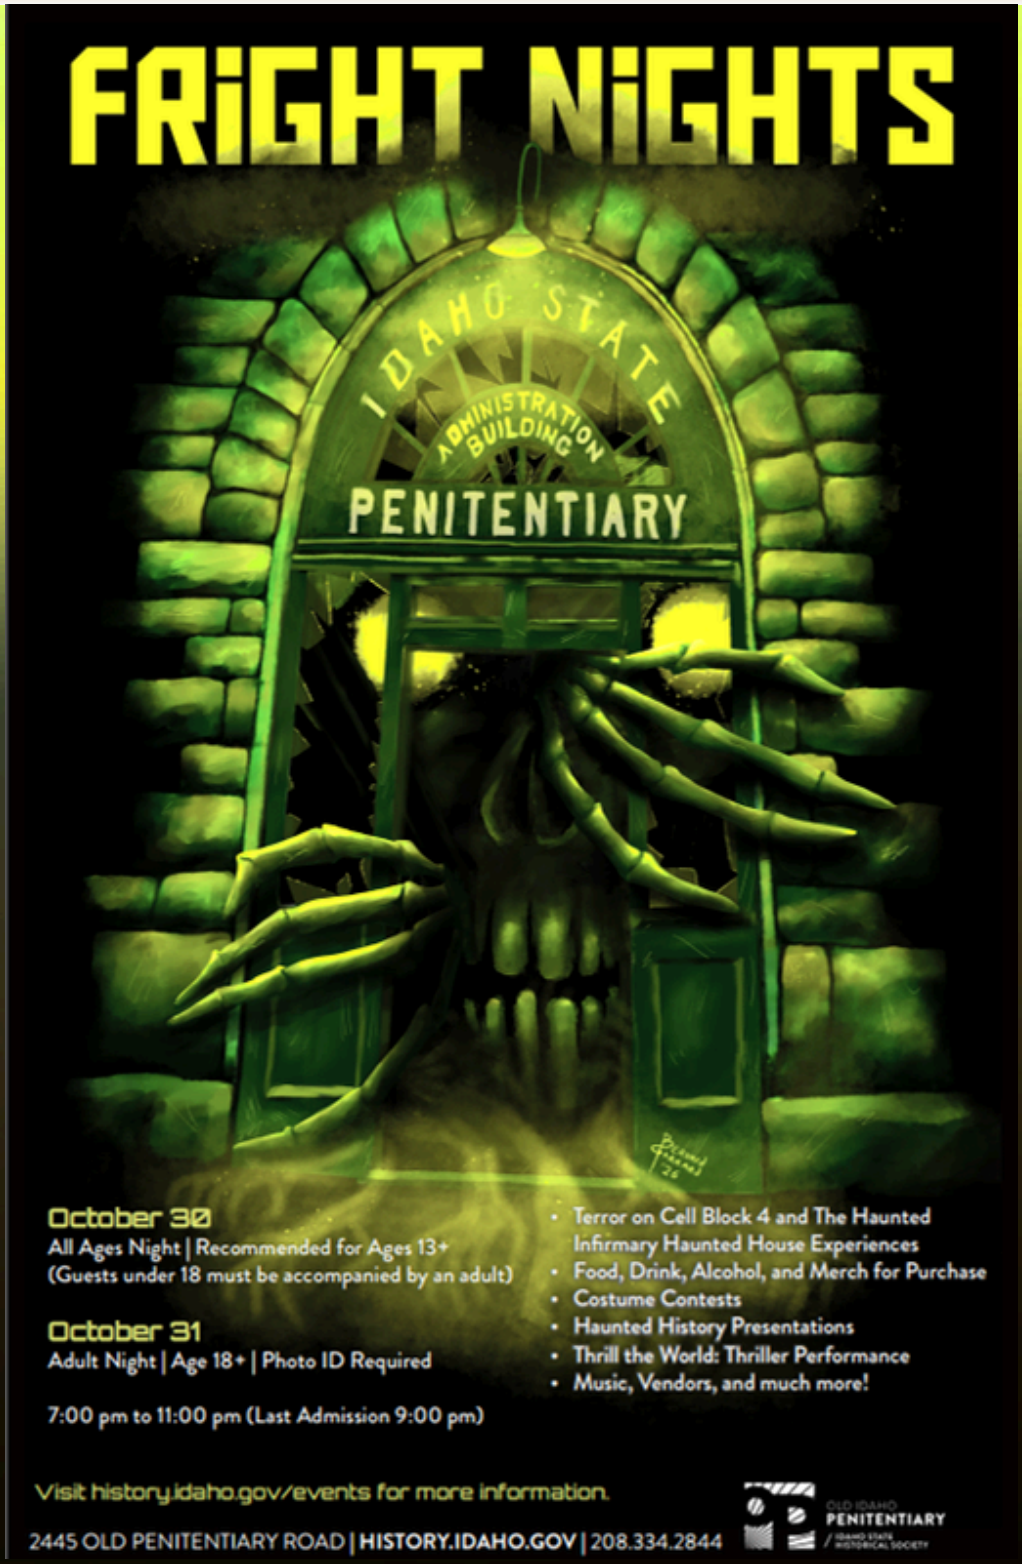

One of the most important things we want people to understand is that you don't have to love hockey, know how to skate, or even own a pair of skates to be part of Beyond the Boards. At its heart, this isn't simply an ice-sports project. It's a community project. If you believe young people need positive places to grow, families need places to connect, individuals with disabilities deserve opportunities designed with them in mind, financial circumstances shouldn't automatically close doors, and communities become stronger when people have somewhere they belong—then there is a place for you in this mission....one of the greatest ways people can help is simply by sharing our story. Follow us, talk about the vision, share our posts and introduce Beyond the Boards to people who might connect with what we're trying to accomplish. Sometimes the person who shares a post isn't the person who ultimately becomes involved—but they may be the reason our story reaches them...

Q. What does support look like to you beyond just financial support?

Support, to me, is anyone who is willing to help carry the vision forward in whatever way they can....money is only one piece of what Beyond the Boards needs. Right now, some of the most meaningful support can be as simple as someone saying, "I believe in what you're trying to do. How can I help?"...Support can look like sharing our story with someone else. It can be making an introduction to a person or organization we should know...a volunteer giving a few hours of their time, or someone with nonprofit experience helping us avoid a mistake they learned from themselves...Sometimes support is simply encouragement...I also think one of the greatest forms of support is honest input. We don't want to build Beyond the Boards based only on what we think people need. We want to listen. We want families, athletes, individuals with disabilities, coaches, community organizations and others to tell us what's missing, what barriers they've experienced and what would make this facility truly useful to them...If Beyond the Boards becomes everything we hope it can be, there will never be one person who can say, "I built this." Instead, I hope there will be thousands of people who can look at it someday and say: "I helped." And I think there is something incredibly special about that. Because a community facility should have a community story behind it.

This is only a very small portion of our in-depth Q&A with Beyond The Boards Foundation. Getting Corn-Fused in Idaho

Who knew getting lost could be so much fun?

In 1997, Lowe Family Farmstand opened Idaho's first corn maze in Kuna--turning an ordinary cornfield into a fall adventure.

The goal was getting families out to visit the farm, but in a creative way. Soon after, the corn maze became a Treasure Valley staple and a beloved tradition. The maze provides families a way to create memories and enjoy the fall weather--all while they wander, twist, and turn trying to find their way out of the maze.

Alongside the corn maze, Lowe Family Farmstand features a variety of pumpkins and gourds, hayrides, livestock, and other family-friendly attractions.

Fun fact: The maze gets a new design each year, so even if you think you know the way out, you might want to think again!

MASHIDAHO

Meet MASHIDAHO - an Idaho-based outdoor apparel company with a unique concept: celebrate Idaho through comfortable - and, more importantly - clever tees and gear.

"Although many apparel brands call their products "streetwear", we like to refer to our products as "dirtwear".

After years of hiking around neighboring states, Steve and Kim decided to focus their adventures closer to home.

"We learned about Idaho's history and geography, and felt compelled to share what we discovered... We began crafting messages around our experiences and developed the beginnings of our brand."

The Idaho wilderness, with its massive mountain ranges, deep river canyons, and remote alpine terrainis worth commemorating on a t-shirt!

As MASHIDAHO points out, "many of the wilderness destinations in Idaho are named so they sound menacing and potentially dangerous (Hells Canyon, Snake River, Sawtooth Mountains, Seven Devils Mountains). Even the Idaho state fish is the Cutthroat Trout." Different from many souvenier t-shirts, MASHIDAHO encourages people to purchase their gear BEFORE visiting the Idaho outdoors--that way the destination becomes part of the plan to visit.

Steve and Kim say that MASHIDAHO has given them "the opportunity to meet the most friendly, kind, and supportive people out there," and that they "have developed some meaningful, life-long friendships that will stay with us regardless of our level of business success. That is priceless."

MASHIDAHO has also been nominated as a finalist by BUY IDAHO for the "Spirit of Idaho" Award. This award is given to Idaho businesses that "champions local, supports its community, shows up for other Idaho businesses, and brings that special Idaho energy to everything they do." The winner will be announced on October 6, 2026.

Steve and Kim's best piece of advice for others that are creating a brand:

"There will be highs and lows as you attempt to build your brand. Stay focused on the positives and don't let any outside negativity stop you. Learn from your mistakes and get better every day!"

A non-profit animal shelter managed by volunteers.

"Our mission is to return lost cats and dogs to their owners, and find loving homes for those that have no home. We promote the compassionate treatment of animals everywhere."

Having a pet is more than just companionship– it's making a promise to give that animal stability, love, and care for it's whole life. Unfortunately, this promise isn't always kept, leaving that animal with uncertainty, anxiety, and fear. When this happens, adoption can be another chance at a happy, fulfilled life. This is what Paws-itive Tails is all about. Animals finding another chance with a family who will love them forever.

Pet Adoption League of Gem County has many wonderful animals waiting for their forever homes. Give a lucky dog or cat the chance for their own Paws-itive Tail,... visit PetAdoptionLeagueOfGC.com to find who is available for adoption!

Charles

Wirehaired Pointing Griffon mix

(In shelter from 4/3/26 - 5/2/26)

Charles came to us as a stray found near a known dumping spot. He was a mess. He was very underweight at just 38.8lbs, in just 3 weeks with us he got to 48lbs and still needed to gain some more weight. He had what the vet believed to be bedsores from being either kenneled or tied up on concrete. The wounds were bad and smelly. It took weeks for them to be mostly healed. His nails were also very long and impacted his ability to walk.

Charles now has a loving Forever Family. He has learned to play fetch and has become quite the couch potato. He has an active family and joins them on hikes & brewery visits. And he now weighs 60 pounds.

Bear

(Great Dane mix)

(In shelter from 4/21/26 - 5/23/26)

Bear came to us from situation where the occupants had too many dogs on the property and Bear was living in a jeep. The owners needed to rehome two dogs. Bear's new family came all the way from North Idaho to adopt him. Bear is living his best life! He now has acres in which to run, laps to lay on, couches to nap on, and cats who think he is a rubbing post.

Give an animal a paws-itive tail!

Goofy is a very sweet, loyal, and active boy with plenty of energy. He has been walking well on a lead leash (easy walk brand) and enjoys his routine of a daily walk or jog.
He would do best with an adopter who can confidently handle a strong dog and continue to work with Goofy on his manners. He also loves to cuddle up for a nap as he thinks he is a lap dog.
